The ruled pages of the American Antiquarian Society's copy contain the manuscript circulation record of a rental library in Lyons, N.Y., from February 1860 to April 1865. The name of the town is not given, but the list of borrowers includes many names of prominent Lyons families of the period, including Remsen, Harrington, Holley, Dewey, Parshall, Hotchkiss, Taft, Rogers, and Leach. Identifiable individuals are Samuel C. Redgrave and Edward P. Taft, both of whom entered the Union army from Lyons in 1862; Amos Harrington, the president of Lyons in 1859-60; and Katy (Katherine) Parshall, daughter of DeWitt W. Parshall, civic president in 1857-58. The entries give the title borrowed, the name of the borrower (often only the surname) and the month and day, with notations of payment and return. Only the record for 1864 gives the year. The works circulated are chiefly popular fiction.
